

Real-time substrate: three channel types from one authenticated hub

An authenticated connection is required; messages are scoped by channel type, and the substrate is designed to fan out across multiple instances.

